

ABSTRACT

A device is described which possesses an array of light-emitting diodes configured to distribute the light energy over the surface of a volume of material. The device is suited to photo-initiating the polymerization of photo-sensitized polymer or polymer composites.